

SUNDAY, JUNE 06, 2010

June 7, 2010

Viv and I enjoyed Palm Beach as it was winding down for the season. We glimpsed a tiny Caroline Kennedy doppelganger with a blonde bob, in a perfectly hand-smocked smocked dress at Hamburger Heaven. Mommy was long and lean and extra blonde.

There is a big sale at The Church Mouse today, so take an extra long lunch hour! Lots of Ferragamos!

We found these absolutely beautiful and perfect Louboutin red shoes in the window of Classic Collections. Can't you see me tottering around the beach Publix in these? They did not have vertiginous heels, rather shorter court heels, but the price tag was just a wee bit out of my range. Still, they are beautiful, as are many of the items in the shop. We overheard a well-tucked woman negotiating for a Chanel bag.

Classic Collections is on the corner of Sunset and County, near enough to Green's Pharmacy that you can stagger over for a restorative Diet Coke after you snap up your designer goodies. There are several other consignment shops on Sunset that we like to visit - which will be the theme of this week's FAD!